

Real World University

Today's students are expected to know and be able to demonstrate academic and technical information and tasks that did not even exist a generation ago. We all know however, that the demands of the workplace have changed too. Real World University is an idea that brings together the skill, attitude and behavior sets needed in the workplace. Business partners work with teachers to design tailor made plans to ensure Lower Cape May Regional Programs align with the real world of work. As a result students earn industry credentials and follow a sequence of courses that lead to successful internships, work/study programs or initial job placement.

Business Owner Carl Suit at the "House of Print" has been working with Lower Cape May Regional Art teachers to sponsor a pop up art gallery. He knows funding for the arts is limited and is using the event that includes sales from local South Jersey Artists to generate funds to support the school's art programs.
